Assurance Care

Unobtrusive monitoring of movement, temperature and humidity

System learns expected routines and notifies exceptions

Assists in maintaining independence

Allows proactive checking to see that all is well

It's already been given the affectionate soubriquet 'the granny app' but it's a little more serious than that. Assurance Care is a clever system that discreetly checks whether an elderly relative is up and about, warm and comfortable, providing family or carers with peace of mind.

There's no intrusion, no video, no sound and no prying. The monitor, which goes in the person's home is a small unobtrusive box that contains movement, temperature and humidity sensors. It is linked to web so that relatives or carers can see, on a mobile phone, that all is well from anywhere at any time with regularly updated information. And if movement or environmental data drops below expected learnt levels the relative(s) or carer(s) get a notification. What could be simpler?

As an added benefit the app will also register visitor activity in the monitored area(s).

In many cases a single intelligent sensor (that monitors movement, temperature and humidity) is all that's needed but 50plus will advise on the best set up. In some circumstances a second sensor can be useful.

- Sensor: dimensions: width 95mm, depth 93mm, height 48mm, colour: black speckle / pale green
- Application: available on any number of Apple iPhone and Android phones, regularly updated movement monitor graphic, lack of normal activity notifications and environmental temperature and humidity data
- Installation (when installed package selected), sensor installed on site by our expert, set up, app installation on a relative / carer's phone if the relative / carer is present. If not relatives / carers are able to download the app themselves and 50plus will supply the access details.
